

Learning Disability, AD/HD Students

Colleges and universities sometimes have programs to help students with special considerations. Please contact the college to see what programs exist at their school. Also, search within the college website for any student groups that may be helpful. In addition, please contact the appropriate organization listed below to learn what resources or links they might be able to provide. The Mott College and Career Center has a resource book to help students with learning disabilities learn about college programs and services.
